

NEW ART SPACE OPENS

ABOUT 150 people last week attended the opening of a SALA exhibition at Lucent Art House, a new art and accommodation space situated in Stirling.

The space was created by Worth Gallery director Amy Sierp-Worth and family members Oli, Ruby and Sasha Sierp.

“Our two (other) family businesses, Lucent Constructions and Worth Gallery have gone ‘shezam’ and now we are proud to introduce our new family owned and run, luxury, boutique hotel, Lucent Art House.

Ms Worth, who previously ran The Barn and Studio Gallery classes at Aldgate said Lucent Art House has around 100 original artworks on the walls including some by Hills artists Rita Hall, Richard Musgrave Evans and Monica Morgenstern among others.

The current exhibition shows images of past exhibitions, hosted by Worth Gallery, at venues throughout Adelaide.

“Loyal patrons of Worth Gallery have followed our gallery from one exciting venue to another and now artworks, collected over 10 years, are on display and available for purchase in this exciting new venue,” said Amy.

“After living away from the hills for many years, we returned and fell in love with each other and the area. Oli has been busy building beautiful spaces for other people and now we have our own sustainable and magnificent home with adjoining tourist accommodation.”

*LEFT:
Hills artist Richard Musgrave
Evans.*

FAR LEFT: Lucent Art House.

*BELOW:
At the opening were Sophie
Hann of Belair, left, Sally Ashton of Basket Range and Tess Syme of Belair.*

*BELOW LEFT:
Artwork by Marcia Burnette of Mylor.*

Photos by Alkan Chipperfield.

